JAZZ AT LINCOLN CENTER ANNOUNCES 2009-10 SEASON AND LINE UP OF DISTINGUISHED GUEST MUSIC DIRECTORS

New York, NY (March 18, 2009) Jazz at Lincoln Center and Artistic Director Wynton Marsalis, announced the 2009-10 season programming featuring concerts, education events, broadcasts, touring and a stellar line-up of guest music directors (see attached chronology). This is the organization's 23rd season of programming and begins the sixth season in its home, Frederick P. Rose Hall.

Wynton Marsalis, Artistic Director at Jazz at Lincoln Center, said, "This season we are reinvigorated about providing the best jazz music to uplift people during these challenging times. From the JLCO swinging as hard as they do, to the holiday and family concerts, the well of jazz music runs deep and has provided inspiration, nourishment, happiness and uplift down through the generations regardless of circumstance."

"The House of Swing continues to be an oasis for New Yorkers and visitors, bringing people together through jazz education, performance, exhibits and more. The new season promises food for the soul, with uplifting and engaging events," said Lisa Schiff, Chairman of Jazz at Lincoln Center.

"Through international collaborations, new works and revelations from the great history of this music, Jazz at Lincoln Center continues to offer programming for all tastes, ages and budgets," said Adrian Ellis, Executive Director of Jazz at Lincoln Center.
