Jazz at First Sight: The Art of David Stone Martin

Who/What:

Jazz at Lincoln Center presents a free art exhibition entitled Jazz at First Sight: The Art of David Stone Martin, featuring the record-album art of David Stone Martin (1913-1992)—whose brilliantly evocative jazz covers for the Verve label and others set the industry standard. Martin sought visual equivalents of the music contained in the sleeves he illustrated: iconic images instantly recognizable as modern jazz.

This exhibit is curated by Robert G. O’Meally, C. Daniel Dawson, Diedra Harris-Kelley and Linda Florio (designer), with Tad Hershorn of the Institute of Jazz Studies, Rutgers University, as special curatorial advisor.
